TOULON, A UNIVERSITY CITY

A city where it feels good to study

Publié le 21 October 2014

Toulon City has climbed 8 places on l'Étudiant magazine's 2014 list of "Cities where it feels good to study". It is the greatest progress compared to last year. Raking 2nd of middle-sized university cities, it even ranks 1st in the employment section thanks to the dynamism displayed for 10 years.

Students in the heart of the City

The results of this classification were published at the same time as the start of the academic year in the city center. From now on Toulon City's university Campus gathers 4,500 students coming from the Law Faculty, Ingémédia Institute, the University Department of Economics and management, the Institute of business management, ISEN engineering school, Kedge Business School and nearby Two-Year Technical Degrees. The new campus opened its doors in a rich, multidisciplinary environment, where skills develop as closely as possible to companies.

What comes after studying?

The development of the broadband network, the reception of business incubators, collaborative spaces and the support for creation, all allow young graduates to find a job. With its partners, the City spread these infrastructures at the forefront of innovation to support employment. By supporting young entrepreneurs and a Bachelor's degree dedicated to entrepreneurship, the University meets the expectations of a territory including the Mediterranean Sea Pole, involved in the Secure Communicating Solutions Pole and endowed with a rich network of small and medium-sized businesses.

Ideal size and quality of life

A so-called "middle sized city" is the guarantee of quality everyday life thanks to reduced transport times, an access to a cultural and sports offer at a lower cost, programs specially dedicated to students... As for the natural resources of the municipality, they are unmistakably an asset regarding environment: between the Mediterranean coast and the Mounts overlooking the city, nature is the city's guest!
